"This CD is our most significant recording to date. It makes a unique artistic statement". Says Thomas Young a tenured Professor of Music at Sarah Lawrence College and who's critically acclaimed international career spans more than three decades and impressive body of work showcasing vocal versatility was the model on which the group's formation is based upon.

The trio first formed in 1999 and gained national prominence on PBS GREAT PERFORMANCES as the surprise hit of My Favorite Broadway: The Love Songs (March 2001), they returned in August to GREAT PERFORMANCES live in Concert at New York's famed Hammerstein Ballroom as The Three Mo' Tenors. Then in 2004 Cook, Dixon & Young Live In Concert: Volume One was their third PBS GREAT PERFORMANCE showcase. This time they were singing under their own names Cook, Dixon & Young. To date they have appeared in six nationally broadcasted PBS Specials and toured extensively across the US and abroad receiving critical acclaim wherever they perform. ("A runaway phenomenon," The Cincinnati Enquirer; "Vastly entertaining," The Chicago Tribune; "They have the talent to sing anything, and sing it well," The Chicago Daily Herald).
